Diagnostician M.D. Offers Services as Expert Witness for Defense/Plaintiff Cases for Potential Medical Malpractice Lawsuits.

Baltimore, MD – June 4, 2010 – Before you spend all of your money on legal proceedings regarding a potential medical malpractice lawsuit, check with certified expert diagnostician Michael T. Wetherby, M.D. If you are a lawyer working on a defense or plaintiff case, Dr. Wetherby will be able to review your medical case and determine its validity as well as how best to structure it if you have a case.

No stranger to potential malpractice lawsuits, Dr. Wetherby has 25 years of experience. Providing numerous oral and written reports, his expertise will save you several hours of preparation and thousands of dollars. If needed, he can replace another expert in case they withdraw at the last minute. Reliability and quick response to his clients' needs makes Dr. Wetherby stand out from the rest.

According to Dr. Wetherby, "The main question my clients ask is if there was any negligence being conducted by the doctor in question. My role is to analyze what happened and determine if malpractice occurred as a result of lacking standards. Negligence is always a possibility and thousands of dollars and mental anguish can be prevented if the question is answered in advance."

Besides practicing medicine, Dr. Wetherby serves as a faculty member at John Hopkins Medical School. He also serves as a board member on the state medical board as an expert analyst and witness in diagnostic medical cases. He has written several books on diagnostic medicine as well as scientific papers and articles in various medical journals. He also has received awards as an outstanding professor of medicine.

Dr. Wetherby is an ambassador of the American Board of Diagnostics and the National Board of Medical Doctors. He has been a leading lecturer on diagnostic medicine throughout the world and has appeared as a guest on several news shows.

Reliability and accessibility are very important to Dr. Wetherby and they always represent the method in which he conducts his business. His expertise is available to you at any time.
